NOTES	Banksy's Pulp Fiction first appeared as an urban art piece on a wall in near Old Street tube station in 2002 depicting a scene from Quentin Tarantino's Pulp Fiction, with Samuel L Jackson and John Travolta holding bright yellow bananas instead of guns. It had been visible until 2007, when the Transport for London decided to paint over the wall judging graffiti create an atmosphere of social decay and neglect in the capital. When a local artist sprayed-painted the words « Come Back » addressed to Banksy, he re-painted his original street piece at the exact same place but this time the characters were holding pistols and were wearing banana costumes Young graffiti artist Ozone wrote over Banksy's new piece the words « If it's better next time I'll leave it ». Sadly the 19-year-old artist passed away a few days afterwards hit by an underground train. Banksy made a tribute artwork over his second Pulp Fiction mural, depicting an angel wearing a bulletproof vest.
